The Mehedule Committee of the American Association Has About Finished Its Work-Conflicting Pates to be Avoided, The gentlemen representing the Schedule Committee of the American Association were hard at work in President Byrne's office yes terday. Secretaries Ebbets and Munson outlined the schedule, while Messrs, Byrne, Doyle Abell, Barnie, and Von der Ahe looked on and from time to time made suggestions. The schedule will suit the whole committee at least. It is quite certain that the Eastern clubs will open the season in the East, and the Western clubs in the West, the Eastern clubs then going West. There will probably be some

Manager Barnie of the Baltimore Club said resterday that the new ground of his club would be as fine as any in the country. The ground is now building, and is three blocks further out than the old one. Five lines of ears run to it, and a line of electric motors will be constructed. The ground is 516 by 450 feet, and will have a seating capacity for 2,000 persons. Barnie says that he would like to play the New York Club on the Polo grounds at any time that the club may have an open date.

TORONTO, Jan. 9.—With regard to the application of the Newark and Jersey City Clubs for admission to the International Base Ball Association, President McConneil of the Toronto Base Ball Association says that Toronto Will vote in the negative. He is of the opinion that eight clubs in the League are quite enough. The Toronto Club yesterday released Connetts.

Eddie Kennedy, who made so fine a record while with the Lowell Club last season, was leaning against the Polo ground fence the other day when The Sun reporter happened up that way. His face looked sad, and every once in a while he would glance at a small newspaper clipping which he held in his hand. He passed the slip to the reporter. It was from the Lowell News, and pretty nearly worn out with age. This is what it said:

Lowell News, and protty nearly worn out with ago. This is what it said:

The popularity of favorite members of the Lowell Rase Bail Club has been a matter of competition between the friends of the respective members since last summer. At that time a well-known olgar dealer placed a brand of clears on the market called the Lowell Base Bail Club clear, and every purchaser of this brand was given a chance to vote for his favorite bail player. The man receiving the highest number of votes was to be presented with an elegant gold watch, chain, and clearm, valued at $150. A despatch from St. Louis says; "The Browns will leave for Hot Springs, Ark., next month to take their great annual bath and to try to get rid of the alcohol imbibed during the winter. The talk about resngaging Gleason of the Athletics is probably idle. While he might prefer to return to St. Louis, he certainly would not do so unless Von der Ahe would promise to pay him regularly, which, now that he has engaged Fuller, he cannot do. All negotiations for McTamany and Davis are now off, and if Washington wants the latter the Browns will not offer any opposition."

In the old days, when the Black Diamonds were playing to empty benches, there was a great rivairy between the Browns and the Deaguers. Ted Sullivan was Lucas's right-hand bower, and Jimmy Williams occupied that position in President Von der Ahe's cabinet. Every move of the other was watched, and they say that one day, when Chris saw Ted in earnest conversation with a stranger on a street corner. Jimmy Williams was summoned instanter, with the command. "Go sign that man." And when Ted finally let go Williams took his place. Instead of a star player he found that the stranger was a Bible agent. Chris didn't sign him.—Times-Star.

A small crowd, a corresponding lack of enthusiasm and not a large score characterized the game in the Amateur Athletic Bowling League at Orange last evening with the New York Athletic Club's team. Orange pitted its strongest team, while the New Yorks were evidently not at their best. The home team quickly took the lead and held it throughout, the difference being but little at any time. Mr. Bonner Sells a Young Mare for $15,000

On Tuesday Mr. W. R. Allen ran up with Mr. Bonner to the farm at Tarrytown and purchased the bay mare Miss Majolica, foaded May 1, 1884, for $15,000. The price is a large one but Miss Majolica is a young mare of rare blood and marked individuality. She is by Startle, who trotted old Fleetwood in 2:19, and is out of Jessie Kirk, by Clark Chief, sire of Coxie, 2:194, and of Kentucky Prince, sire of Guy, 2:12, Jessie Kirk runs, on the side of her dam, through the Flict blood found in Maud S. and Jay-Eye-See to the speed-supporting strains of Diomed and Mossenger.

Miss Majolica is the only sister of Majolica, and last summer, as a four-year-old, she trotted a mile on the farm track with very little work in 3:22M, last quarter in 334 seconds a 2:18 gait. Mr. Allen bought her for a brood mare, and as she is from great producing lines she is almost sure to throw trotters. She will be trained the coming season, and a record will be put on her.

Mr. Von Panschin's time for the mile is announced as 2:59 and Joe Donoghue of Newburgh, the American champion, must have been right at his heels, as he finished second, occupying three minutes to cover the distance. The rase was participated in by the Russian, American, Helland, Stockholm, and Hamburg champions, and as in the previous contest You Panschin won, with Donoghue second.
Afterward an international race for professional skaters was contested. G. Smart of England won in 3 minutes 9 seconds.

KILRAIN WILL BE HERE TO-DAY. He Wants the Final Stakeholder Appetnte

Everything was very quiet in fistic circles in New York yesterday, but there will be plenty of gossip to-day, when Kilrain and Mitchell arrive from Albany. Sullivan's friends were in good humor, and maintained that Kilrain will either have to fight or forfeit.

At the office of the Illustrated News a dozen letters from admirers of the big fellow were received by Editor Lumley. Some of the epis-tles were very amusing. It was hinted in one that Kilrain would go to Europe with Mitchell and remain in England permanently, thus forfeiring the $5,000 deposited with the Clipper by Louis B. Allen. Kilrain's friends laugh at this heory, and assert that the Baltimorean will be in the ring on July 8, and that he will win beyond peradventure. Jack Roche of Baltimore, who is a friend of Kilrain, told a Sun reporter last night that the Kilrain, told a Sun reporter last night that the report of Kilrain's intention to withdraw from the Toronto agreement is quite false. When Kilrain comes to this city, he will try to arrange with Charley Johnston and Jim Wakeley for the appointment of a final stakeholder immediately. At present there is some doubt whether a withdrawal of one of the men would necessitate the forfeiture of his deposit. The question would be settled by the deposit of the final money on both sides, and Jake wants to clinch the bargain. Though Kilrain thinks Suilivan got the best of him at the Toronto conference, he will not ask for any further change in the articles of agreement. He admits the propriety of selecting the referred at the ring side. rice admits the propriety of selecting the reference at the ring side.

Kilrain says he will accept the offer made by citizens of El Paso for a fight between him and Sullivan for a purse of $10,000, provided it be arreed that the whole purse shall go to the winner.

"I I can't whip Sullivan I don't want a cent," said Jake to Mr. Roche. "I am putting up all my money, and it's all or nothing with me." Immediately after his conference with Sullivan's backers Kilrain will go to Baltimore, where he will at once begin a system of moderate training.

JACK DELANCEY BEATS BURKE. Dempsey's Protege Lulls the Brooklysite to Sleep in Four Rounds. Jack Delancey did something to confirm Jack Dempsey's good opining of him yesterday morning when he knocked out young Burke of Brooklyn in four rounds.

Delancey did nearly all the leading, and in the short battle dealt half a dozen hard blows on Burke's ribs, neck, and jaw. The lads vere pretty evenly matched. Burke standing 5 feet 75 inches to Delancey's 5 feet 6 inches. and weighing 126 pounds to 124. Staten Island was the battle ground, and a purse of $100 the prize. Dan Gallagher of Greenpoint was stakeholder and master of ceremonies, and J. P. Eckhardt referee. Sergeant Flaherty and Billy McGibben held the watches. Billy Dacey and McGloben held the watches. Billy Dacey and Frank Brennan handled the wluner, and John Flood and Jack Murray seconded Burke. Skin gloves were used. Burke fought an eightround draw with Tommy Warren at the Criterion Club. Philadelphia, in July. 1886, and had beaten Dave Campbell in eleven rounds, and Jack McGrath in twenty-two rounds. Delancey's most important contests had been with Jack Hicks of Philadelphia, Johnny Gleason of Albany, Jack Harding of Philadelphia, Bob Haight of Hudson, Steve Myers of Troy, and Swipes the Newsboy, all of which he won. The betting was about even at the start, but Delancey did such good work in the first round that he quickly became the favorite. He showed that he had a good left, and won first blood with it in the second round by landing on Burke's nose. Burke got in two good left handed blows in the third round, one on the jaw and the other on the ribs. He tried three times in this round to plant his left on Delancey's stomach, but each time the latter got away, and returned with a left-handed smash, twice on the stomach and once on the law. The last blow staggered Burke, but Delancey indied to follow up the advantage.

After a few seconds fibbing in the fourth round Delancey let go his left, caught Burke fairly on the jaw, and sent his man sprawing on his face. Burke could not reach his feet in twenty seconds, and had to be carried to his corner. Frank Brennan handled the winner, and John

From the Baltimore American.

Jack Dempsey, the Nonpareil and middle-weight champion, and his trainer. Denny Costigan, are in the city. In conversation with an American representative yesterday ne spoke in a very bitter manner about Charley Mitchell. The said, "is a coward. His excuse this time is a disabled hand. That is a good one. Two years ago, however, I gave him a chance in Chicago, when he was in the pink of condition, and doing sparring matches with Burke at the Battery D Hall. I met him in his dressing room one night, and even went so far as to slap him across the face with $2,500 in bills, and dared him to cover it to a finish. He took water, as usual, and tried to compromise the matter by trying to induce me to do hippodrome matches with him through the West. Continuing, he said: "The California Athletic Club offered a big purse some few weeks ago if Mitchell and I would agree to meet in their rooms. It was big balt, and I would have loved dearly to have gotten possession of a greater portion of it. You all know Mitchell's excuse.

"Pugllism." said Dempsey, "is a lucrative business, and it is for this reason, and not for the love of the sport, that I entered into it. I have fought enough battless during my life, and. I might say, am only anxhous to fight one more, and that is with Mitchell. I want to hear from him again before he crosses the pond."

The conversation drifted off to the muchtaiked-of match between Kilrain and Sullivan.

"What do you think will be the result of the match?" asked the reporter.

"That is a hard question," said the Nonparell. "Such a fight would be a great one. Two men could not be more evenly matched, and yet use different tactics. Both are born fighters, clever sparrers, and perfectly familiar with both the Marquis of Queensberry and London prize ring rules. I like Kitrain, both for his puglisite abilities and as a friend. He should make a great showing with the big feller. Sullivan, on the other hand, has been taking exceptionally good care of himself sinc

MR. ROBERTSON SHUTS UP.

Company that its Musplelous Character Was More Than Suspected by Its Officers Treasurer Robertson of the wrecked Electric Refining Sugar Company of lower Wall street and England adopted a different executive policy yesterday. Ever since the smash he has been voluble and more or less interest ing because of the variety of his statements oncerning the company's progress and affairs These statements at times have been vioently contradictory. Yesterday he decided to be silent, absolutely silent. This was in response to further desputches from President Cottériil out in Michigan. Mr. Cotterill had warned Mr. Robertson not to talk about his. Mr. Cotterill's, mission in Michigan. He informed Mr. Robertson that he must stop talking about himself. Mr. Robertsen complied. One of Mr. Robertson's visitors was S. Evirson, a painter at 13 Florence street, Hoboken. Mr. Evirson, who is a Christadelphian like

Mr. Robertson, had on Mr. Robertson's state ments invested $150 in one share of the company. The Evirsons are very poor, and borrowed $55 to make up the sum needed to purchase the one share. But they believe firmly In Mr. Robertson, and say that he was tamboozied himself. It was learned from Earclay, McGregor & Co., beozied himself.

It was learned from Barclay, McGregor & Co., the big sugar importers in Exchange place, that J. B. Wallace, representing certain Liverpool shareholders is the company, came to New York after Prof. Friend's death and insisted upon knowing something about the company's affairs and demonstrations. He says he was constantly put off by Mr. Robertson, and that he sont two cables to Liverpool, the first saying things looked "flshy" and the second advised all English stockholders to get out of their shares. Mr. Wallace then returned to Liverpool, followed by the paring threat that he would be sued for defaming the company. It was further made known that Mrs. H. M. Baillee, through St. John Henriques of 114 West 133d street, made known to Mr. Robertson all that she had seen and heard while a dressmaker for Mrs. Friend in the Sixtleth street house. Mr. Henriques told Robert Robertson, and Robert sold out his five shares and wrote a long letter to his shares and wrote a long letter to his brother, then in England booming the shares, that he was convinced that the Professor's process was a fraud. FIRE IN RUTHERFORD.

Eight Buildings Bestroyed with a Total

Eight business buildings were burned in the little village of Rutherford, N. J., vesterday morning. About 1 o'clock Henry Burgmeister, an upholsterer having rooms over his store in Park avenue, near the Erie depot, rushed into the street in his night clothes crying "Fire! Murder! Help! Thieves!" He then fell in a faint and was carried to the house of a neighbor. The house was soon in flames, Bergmeister had been very ill for some time. In getting out of bed to get some medicine he tipped over a stand near his bed. A lighted kerosene lamp crashed on the floor and there was an explosion. The room was soon in was an explosion. The room was soon in flames. His fright gave him strength to reach the street. He was not burned. There are two volunteer fire companies in town ewning two small mand engines, and a hook and ladder company. The fire spread rapidly, and at 2 A. M. the firemen sent to Carltsait and Passaic for aid. Engines came from both places. The Passaic engine get stack in the mud and four houses were sent from Rutherford to hauf it.

There were ten buildings in the block and seven of them were burned to the ground. Seven of the buildings faced Park avenue and three Frie avenue. The firemen worked all night and all day vesterday. Last evening fire was still smouldering in the mass of flour and feed of F. E. Burtis's store.

The loss was about $25,000. The losers are as follows: Julius Brugger, baker, $2,200, total loss: Jacob Lampert, variety store and news depot, $1,500, insurance $500; which has already been paid by the Phenix of Brooklyn: Frank Rhinehart, talior, loss $1,600, insurance $500; Henry Burgmoister. $1,000, insurance $500; I. Yesterday he had a knotty case. W. E. Barton, a large cigar manufacturer, who has been boycotted by the Knights of Labor for putting in bunch-breaking machines, was before the Justice on a charge of assaulting one of the Knights. In disposing of the case the Justice said:

"I may as well state right here that I don't believe in the Knights of Labor. I hold that every man has the right to employ whom he sees fit without any dictation from organized labor. The old plan of demand and production is the best in my opinion. I look on the beycott of Barton as a conspiracy, and if the instigators are brought before me I will settle their cases.

This was too much for the Knights of Labor here, and they have adopted resolutions to this effect:

"That we, as a body of law-abiding citizens strongly criticise the unmerited remarks of our most honorable Justice. That all organized labor of Syracuse and vicinity do in the future as well as the present bear in mind the injustice of the remarks against organized labor. That a copy of these resolutions be placed on file by each organization to be held for future remembrance of our most honorable Justice."

Justice Mulholland is about 70 years old, and has four years to serve. Where he a younger man and likely to be a candidate again the Knights probably would down him.

The Roseville Atalette Club's Reception. The Roseville Athletic Club held a big reception and promenade concert at their club house at Newark last night. The occasion was ladies' night and the fair sex owned everything for one night at least. The big gymnacium had been cleared of ail its apperatus and made a first rate ball raom. MRS. SCHNEIDER'S MURDER.

Letters Found to Her House That Comp THE TREASURER OF THE ELECTRIC SU-BALTIMORE, Jan. 9 .- Some of the leading GAR SWINDLE HAS BECOME SILENT. nerchants and club men are, figuratively spearing, standing on their heads to-night, They fear that too much publicity may be given to letters they had written and addressed in care of Mrs. Margaret Schneider, an old woman who was murdered yesterday, and which were found neatly bundled and labelled among the belongings of the victim. Some made appoint-ments for a meeting, others asked that certain rooms be reserved, and others still were due bills for wine, &c.

The house, which is on Fifth street, near Charles street, and just bordering on the boundary of society's domain, was utilized by amorous club men, and the old woman was their go-between. It is an isolated square Mrs. Schnelder's house being the only one in the square. Directly opposite is an engine company, the members of which have noticed strange visitors at all hours of the night. and women fashionably dressed were coming and going all the time. By day the place looked deserted, until two weeks ago the old woman had with her a niece, who went by the name of Mrs. Mary Schuman of Philadeiphia. When she left Ida Kessel, a German woman, who had not long been in this country, was engaged, and with her assistance Mrs. Schneider ran the house.

Yesterday afternoon, while the old woman was taking a nap, her servant came into the room and asked for some money. Mrs. Schneider was probably not in the best of humor at being awakened and sharply refused. Thereupon Ida, who is a big strapping woman, 30 years old, pulled the old woman out on the floor by the hair and began beating her. Mrs. Schneider resisted, whereupon the infuriated woman picked up a hatchet and pummelled her with the end. She began at the head, crushing in the frontal bone until the brain was exposed. Then she hacked off an ear, and then broke the bridge of the nose, and continued to hammer until it was flattened out. Every time the old woman raised her hands to defend herself the murderess whacked her over the fingers. When she ot through with the head she pounded the broast and hips until she was tired, and wound up by dragging her victim all over the floor. When she thought the old woman was dead the murderess went into the adjoining room, took off her dress, which was dripping with blood, and put on another. Then, fixing up her bundle, she went out the back way. An hour latter her victim became conscious and dragged herself to the front deor, which she succeeded in opening. One of the enginemen happened to see the ghastly object and, summoning assistance, carried the dying woman back into the house. She lived long enough to tell her story, and said that Ida had beaten her so terribly because she declined to give her money.

tim dragged her way were saturated with blood. Otherwise the house was scrupulously clean.

Since yesterday the police have been looking for the murderess, who had disappeared as completely as though the earth had swallowed her up. Descriptions were sent to every station, and the search was a vigorous one. Late this afternoon a patrolman in South Baltimore, while covering his beat, happened to see a face in a street car which attracted his attention. It corresponded with the description of the murderess. Without hesitating, he boarded the car and pulled out the siril, who offered resistance. When taken to Folice Headquarters she declined to say anything, but hung down her head and pressed her lips together. She was searched, but no money was found on her person. It is not know whether she got away with any valuables, and the only cause that can be assigned for the brutal murder is the refusal of Mrs. Schneider to give her money. The hatchet was found in the sink.

Ida kessel has a broad face and is strongly built. She came here from Germany only a short time ago. She appears to be very ignorant. The letters sent to the house are in the possession of the Marshal of the police. Some of them make very interesting reading.

Later this evening, when pressed by the Marshal, the woman burst into tears, and said that a colored man had entered the house, and that after choking her beat her mistress, and that after choking her beat her mistress, and that she escaped through the back door. It is thought she will confess to-morrow.

STEAMSHIP AGROUND.

The George Appold on the Outer Bar Not Far From Montauk Point, this morning a steamship whistle was heard, and at the same time a rocket was seen in the air. The crew at the life-saving station hauled their apparatus to a point opposite where the whistle was heard. The lifeboat was manned, but as a very rough sea was on, the life savers were unable to get out near the vessel, which was stranded on the outer bar about one mile and a half west of Montauk Point. At daylight the crew made another attempt to go to the assistance of the di-sabled vessel, Though it was blowing hard and the sea was still very rough, the life-savers' boat managed to get within hailing distance. The vessel proved to be the steamship George Appold, bound to Newport with a general cargo of merchandise. She was lying easy with her bow on the bar. As the Captain and crew were in no immediate danger, they did not leave the vessel. No direct EAST HAMPTON, L. FORMER BROOKLYN WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN A TENT.

The Chastly Discovery of a Michigan Parm er who was Exploring a Big Swamp in Search of a Span of Missing Coite, The following special despatch was published in the Brooklyn Eagle yesterday afternoon, dated Grand Haven, Mich., Jan. 9:

"On the edge of a lonely and densely wooded swamp ten miles from here, surrounded on three sides by a bleak prairie and bordering on Lake Michigan on the fourth, a farmer found the body of a beautiful young woman, lying face supward in a tent, with a huge knife plunged to the hilt in her heart. Beside the body was a pocketbook, the contents of which proved that the name of the roman was Julia Howe, that she had resided in Brooklyn, N. Y., and that she had attended

There is as yet absolutely no further elne either to the identity of the woman or to the perpetrator of the mysterious crime.

"The big marsh is one of the most lonesome spots on earth at this season of the year. It is almost impossible to penetrate the swamp. The ground is covered with a network of vines and brambles, and on every side are morasses in which an unwary explorer sinks into soft mud to his shoulders. A farmer living about a mile and a half weat of this big marsh missed a fine span of yearling coits, and, after looking the country over in every direction outside of the marsh, decided to explore its silent and not inviting regions to see if he could find any trace of his lost animals. After encountering many difficulties he reached the edge of the marsh, where thousands of acres of open country stretched out before him. A little distance in advance he saw an army tent of ordinary size. It was standing about twelve rods in the marsh, and there was nowhere a sign of life. There are no houses for miles around. The tent, although it was evening, seemed to be deserted. No smoke ascended from it. There were no domestic animals around it.

"The scene was entirely desolate. The farmer, somewhat apprehensive, gripped his trusty Winchester rifle a little litmer, and cautiously approached the tent. On reaching it he found it to be well staked down and firmly tied at the entrance. The farmer shouted several times, but received no response. He then untied the thongs that fastened the entrance to the tent, and looked in. All was dark. The farmer lighted a match, and stepped inside the tent. A horrible scenejmet his gaze.

"There upon the blanket lay the corpse of a once beautiful young woman. The cyes wide open and starting upward, presented a sight which for the moment aimost caused him to fall down in fear. He lighted a second match and glarced hastily around the interior of the tent. The dim light revealed the handle of a huge knife sticking up from her breast, showing that its long, ugly blade had been plunged through her body in the region of her heart, causing instant death. He picked up a large pocketbook and an old newspaper or t

The defendant is a member of the Philadelphia Typographical Union, and in 1886 was a delegate to the International Convention held at Buffalo, and was elected Secretary and Treasurer of the union. The allegation was that while Pascoe filled the office there was a discrepancy in his accounts of $2.200. Counsel for Pascoe stated in court to-day that his client's duties were increased above those of his predecessor, and that, expecting an increase in the salary, he had simply taken the money, believing that it would be voted him at the proper time. The defendant had promised to pay the money back in order to avoid further publicity.

The Judge said there was great doubt as to whether the defendant had appropriated any money with criminal intent, and instructed the jury to return a verdict of acquittal. was a delegate to the International Convention

The Murder of Edward W. Howland, NEW BEDFORD, Jan. 9 .- Additional information relative to the murder of Edward W. Howland, second, of Lynn is at hand. He was waylaid and murdered on Dec. 16 while riding a few miles out from Pueblo, Mexico. General Agent Wagner of the electric light comeral Agent Wagner of the electric light company, who is stationed at Pueblo, writes the Lynn manager that one of the murderers has been caught and shot. It is expected that the authorities will capture the other one. It seems Mr. Howland was robbed of $3,500 and his valuables. He had drawn the money and intended to leave for New England to observe Christmas with his family. When robbed and murdered he was alone. It was the first time since his advent in Mexico that he went out on the road without his servant, who acted as an interpreter. He had made a great many friends at Pueblo, and the feeling of indignation at the cold-blooded murder is intense.
